

Seasons Change but God Remains

Another summer has come and gone, and another season is upon us. Through the changes of seasons and life, may we always remember God is faithful. “Your faithfulness endures throughout every generation. You set the earth in place, and it continues to stand.” Psalm 119:90 (GW)

With the start of Fall, also comes a busy season for me. In September alone, I have several speaking engagements – once to a young adult group, twice for a church Bible study, and then also four days at a college program. I am excited to see how God will use me at these events.

Since I have a lot of lessons I will need to be writing for these events, we will be cutting back on the amount of production we will be releasing each week. Currently we are still running our Ask Michael series, but we have decided to put a hold on The Gospel of John. We are two episodes away from finishing our course on The Temple Mount Project and after its conclusion, we will begin a new series that I am quite excited about. This series will be The Creation: Combining Science and Theology. The exact date for this release is still to be determined but you can expect to see the first episode around the middle of the month.

Michael spoke at West Bend Community Church North Campus and had fantastic feedback with many stating that they learned so much! Praise God!
